

Consular legalization of documents

To confirm legal force of a document issued outside the Russian Federation must undergo the procedure of legalization. Immediately it should be noted that the apostille and legalization of documents these are two completely different concepts. Consular legalization is performed only on the reference the evidence of the diplomas which are issued by a country not member of the Hague Convention held in 1961. But the legalization of foreign documents and the apostille provided in the States have accepted the norms of international law described in the Convention. Consular legalization is more complicated and expensive procedure. It implies the submission of the application forms and verification of serial numbers through the Ministry of foreign Affairs and the Consulate of the country in which the documents will be used. In some cases, in obtaining consular legalization on a notarized copy of diploma from the applicant may be required to provide a translation of the original document with notarial certification. Linguistic Services is a translation Bureau to which the legalization of documents and their subsequent verification is one of the main activities.
